

Austin Schmaltz has been teaching high school art for six years at Bismarck High School in North Dakota. Austin enjoys practicing and experimenting with the many different art mediums that his role as an art educator demands. Austin has also been a live caricature artist for several years; a skill he began working on in college. His audiences primarily include prom and graduation parties as well as county fairs. Austin looks forward to returning to IMC this year to share his love and knowledge of cartooning with talented young artists.
