

Callie Stadem is a harpist and composer based in Grand Forks, ND. She recently joined the faculty at Concordia College as the harp instructor and teaches privately throughout the Red River Valley. She is also the director of the Red River Harp Ensemble in Fargo, ND, an ensemble comprised of harpists of all different ages and skill levels. As a free-lance harpist, Callie maintains a busy schedule performing with regional ensembles and as a solo artist.

Callie earned her M.M in Music Composition at the University of North Dakota (2016), as well as a B.A. in Music from Augustana University in Sioux Falls, SD (2013). Highlights of her composition portfolio include the chamber opera "The Ransom of Sophia," and her children's musical "Smelly Scallywags." In addition to her work as a musician, Callie is the Executive Director of the Grand Forks Chorales, a non-profit arts organization promoting the role of choral music in the region. In her free time, she likes to garden, train for triathlons, and enjoy the outdoors with her husband and dog.
