

Brad Stockert earned a B.S. in Music Education from the University of Mary. His teaching experience ranges from elementary to the college level. He has adjudicated percussion auditions for North Dakota All-State Concert Band, Orchestra and Jazz Band, and has appeared as a guest clinician around the state of North Dakota. Brad has compiled his years of experience teaching privately into a percussion curriculum that includes four workbooks for drum set and a workbook for snare drum. He also arranges music for middle school and high school percussion ensembles. Brad currently works as a percussion specialist in the Bismarck Public Schools. He also teaches private percussion lessons and performs in a variety of local performance groups.
