Dr. John Lindberg is currently a member of the music faculty at Minnesota State University, Mankato, where he teaches bassoon, music history, music theory, and other courses in the curriculum for that campus. He has also served as Chair of the Department of Music for 11 years, and has been active in developing curricula in music education for the 21st century, music therapy, music industry, music entrepreneurship, and faith-based music. He has performed actively with the Mankato Symphony Orchestra, the Musicall Banquet (a baroque ensemble), and university faculty and student ensembles. His interests are quite varied, and at present, he is preparing a web-based publication on how to improve the longevity and response of commercial bassoon reeds.
