

Donna Randash has known since the 7th grade that she wanted to teach orchestra. She attended Minot State University where she earned her Bachelor of Science degree in music education. Donna is in her 13th year of teaching for Minot Public Schools, having taught both elementary vocal music and orchestra. Currently, she teaches beginner orchestra at multiple elementary schools and assists with the middle and high school orchestras in Minot. She helped found and is a current director of Vivace, Minot's Middle School Honor Orchestra. Donna maintains a private violin and viola studio with students of all ages and abilities. Her students have taken part in All State Orchestra, other honor orchestras, WDA music contest, and State music contest. Donna plays violin in the Minot Symphony Orchestra and can be found baking, spending time with her cat Leopold and dog Ellie, reading a book, or planning her next trip to Scotland when she has some free time.
